

Mariner Software

Portal > Knowledgebase > Mariner Write > Is it possible to have every new document open with Fractional Character Widths automatically selected, rather than gong into the Format Menu and doing it manually?

Is it possible to have every new document open with Fractional Character Widths automatically selected, rather than gong into the Format Menu and doing it manually?

Jim Henson - 2015-03-24 - in Mariner Write

Is it possible to have every new document open with Fractional Character Widths automatically selected, rather than gong into the Format Menu and doing it manually?

Yes, the Fractional Character Width setting is a document option. You can set this option and save its setting as part of your "Default Document. To do so you'll need to enable the option just after creating a new file, then save that file as your default document.

To do so:

1. From the File menu select New.
2. Go to Format-> Document Options.
A dialog appears.
3. Go to the Display Tab and place a checkmark by Fractional Character Widths. Press OK.
4. Now go to File and select "Save as Default File".

Now when you create a new document this setting should always be enabled.